Home Rulers Are Ready With Charter.

WILL PRESENT IT TO LEGISLATURE

Hold Enthusiastic Meeting Last Night and Are Sanguine of Success.

At last night's session of the Independent Charter Commission the City charter was finished and presented to the chairman of the executive committee of the Home Rule party. The document will be presented formally to the Legislature by one of the executive committee, possibly Senator D. Kalanokalani, at the earliest practicable date.

Chairman Testa of the commission, who had a spat with member Quinn at the meeting on Wednesday evening, and who left the hall in a huff, was not present last night and his chair was occupied by L. H. Dee as chairman pro tem. As Secretary Solomon Meheula was busy at the caucus meeting of the Independent executive committee, S. K. Pua was elected as secretary pro tem.

J. T. Erving reported that the revision committee had completed the City charter, which he submitted. R. W. Rowe moved the revised charter be adopted as a whole and sent to the Home Rule executive committee. J. C. Quinn moved that a committee of one be appointed to transfer the charter from the charter commission to the chairman of the Home Rule executive committee, which carried. Chairman Dee appointed Secretary Pua to perform this act of courtesy.

J. C. Quinn then moved that a vote of thanks be extended by the commission to Edgar Cayless and J. T. Erving for the arduous work they had performed both with the City and the County charter, which was adopted unanimously. The secretary will transmit the motion to the two gentlemen in writing. Upon motion of Member Quinn the commission adjourned subject to the call of the secretary.

Mint Saloon Opens Today.

The Mint saloon, on Nuuanu street, will be opened this morning by W. M. Cunningham. The place has been fitted up in good style, and is intended to cater to the best trade; for Manager Mr. Cunningham has selected J. H. McDough, who as manager of the Hilo Hotel won the favor of the Hiloites and all visitors to that town. Bonny Lemon, Wally Davis and Al Hillary will be the dispensers of liquid refreshment, and as they are known to be artists, lovers of the best in liquor will be pleased at their work.

There are pictures in the Mint which are said to be rare works of art and which are worth looking at. A stock of wet goods has been laid in which would please the most exacting connoisseur, and patrons will find no opportunity for fault. Today, as always, the Mint will expect to see its friends, and all who come are assured of a royal welcome. Everything is first-class and the success of the new enterprise is assured.

DANGEROUS ECONOMY.

A recent paragraph about an economical New York merchant saving the backs of old envelopes for scratch paper reminds one of Victor Smith's old friends of this story: A New York dealer who left about $2,000,000, for a long time kept up the practice of tearing off the fly sheets of the sheets of the numerous foolscap letters he received and sticking them on a spindle for scribbling purposes. Envelopes were not yet in use. A lawsuit arose, and the merchant thought he had won his case, when the defendant's letter, duly signed, was produced. Counsel for defendant examined the letter, and, turning it over to look for the superimposition, found that it was missing. He immediately saw his advantage and said: "This letter is incomplete your honor. A sheet is missing. I claim that there might have been a postscript on the other sheet which would entirely change the character of the order." The court so ruled and the defendant won the suit. The practice of utilizing fly sheets in that merchant's office was at once discontinued.

"BATHHOUSE JOHN" IN HIS CANARY SUIT.

At Keith's Theater, in New York, Monday night, on the occasion of the first metropolitan rendition of "Bathhouse John" Coughlin's "Dear Midnight of Love," by May De Sousa, the Chicago alderman-composer occupied a conspicuous seat, and he is said to have been attired in his famous canary yellow evening clothes. This he regards as the chef d'oeuvre among his many artistic suits. Coat and trousers are of a delicate gamboge tint, while the vest is of sea weed green with purple pansies embroidered upon it, intermingled with light threads of scarlet. The alderman was shod in green enamel shoes and carried his violet concertina hat. His shirt displayed broad stripe effects in mauve and crimson, with an ascot tie in varying shades of sky blue and magenta. "Loud?" said the "Bathhouse" in surprise; "not a bit."

DEED FOR AN INCH OF LAND.

William Waldorf Astor, "a subject of Her Majesty, the Queen of Great Britain and Ireland and Empress of India," so runs the deed, has conveyed to his cousin, John Jacob Astor, a strip of New York land one inch wide and 27 feet long. Colonel Astor will not build a new house on his recently acquired possession. The conveyance was merely a formal matter, designed to perfect title to the property adjoining. It would take the most skilled of surveyors to discover just where this little piece of land is. It is somewhere between 408 and 410 Washington street, and probably covered by the wall of a building.

THE KING STIRRED 'EM UP.

The King of Italy, himself a very early riser, walked into the office of administration of the royal household the other morning at 8 and found only a scrubwoman at work. He asked the first clerk, who arrived at 9:30, when the other clerks were due. "We are all due at 8, your majesty." "Ah, and it is now 9:30," remarked the king quietly. Since then there has not been a case of tardiness.

PORTABLE FARE REGISTER.

Below we show a novelty in the cash register line, designed for the use of street car conductors, and intended to replace the fixed register at one end of the car, with its attendant straps to be pulled by excited passengers when they attempt to stop the car. The only strap on this register is the one by which it is suspended from the conductor's shoulder, and even this is instantly detached when the register is presented for the passenger to "drop his nickel in the slot and get a ride." It is to be supposed that the conductor is provided with envelopes containing change for the convenience of the rider or else is able to make the change out of his pocket. As the register is presented for the fare the conductor depresses the push-button and moves the counter forward one number. In view of the person depositing the money in the register. When the end of the line is reached the register is examined, or, oftener, if desired, and the work can be accomplished in much shorter time than it takes to go through the cars and examine the fixed registers. John O. Sloan, of Indianapolis, Ind., is the inventor.

CURIOUS ACCIDENT, SURE.

"How did this happen?" asked the doctor of the old farmer whose arm was in a sling.

"Durned curious accident," replied the man, who had come sixty miles to receive treatment. "One of 'em days when it snowed in the mornin' and melted in the afternoon the hired man that was sent to me from some sort o' mission tells me that the barn roof was a leakin'. I told him to git a ladder an' some shingles an' nails an' a hammer an' do what patchin' was a-needed. He said he didn't carry no life insurance, an' he didn't feel like temptin' Providence, nohow."

"That made me madder'n than a shoat lookin' through a rail fence at a potatoer patch, an' I says I wasn't like the man that couldn't mend his own roofs. My wife protested an' my darter combed the hired man down like he war a criminal; but you kin bet, doc, I went up on that barn. I'd a faced a canning's mouth, I was that riled."

"Bout the time I got the third shingle in place I made the mistake of gettin' too much confidence an' moved too quick. I grabbed ever' thing in sight, tried ter drive the toes of my boots through the shingles, dug in my finger nails an' yelled fur 'em to move the straw stack where I could fall in it. 'Stid o' that I fell across a fat steer what tossed me doggone near back on the roof again, an' I kin down all right only fur the wind an' the pride bein' knocked outen me."

"Where the trouble kin in was me seein' that taral hired man a-laughin' at me. I sailed in fur to flax him, an' this is how I got through. The neighbors say they hain't a mark onto him. I wanten git put tergether ag'in, doc, an' then I'm goin' ter take all the law they is in the land ter that cuss. Us farmers don't have no show, anyhow."

COOLS THE DRINKING WATER.

Hitherto there has been no method of cooling water in the glass water bottle in common use in the dining-room, and convenient and beautiful as the cut glass carafes are, they must be refilled at frequent intervals with cool water or the beverage soon grows tepid and unpalatable. We show below the water bottle recently designed by William B. Fenn, of Winfield, N. Y., which not only has the advantage of maintaining a low temperature in the bottle, but also allows the neck to be separated from the bottle for the purpose of cleaning. Another advantage is that the water compartment can be closed against the action of the air and outside impurities. The neck is attached to the bowl portion of the bottle by means of spirally grooved sections, which fit closely together and are provided with a packing ring to form a water-tight joint. The ice chamber is held inside the neck by three spring fingers, as shown, and is suspended in the water to cool the latter without allowing the molten ice to mingle with the drink.

DR. McLAUGHLIN'S ELECTRIC BELT

There is nothing so penetrating, nothing so invigorating, nothing that will relieve weakness and pain as speedily and surely as Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt. It is simple, but grand. It assists nature by a general reinforcement of the vital energy by infusing a mild, invigorating current of Electricity into the nerves and by supplying the system with the very essence of nerve vigor and strength.

The greatest men in the world of medicine and science say "ELECTRICITY IS LIFE." It is the strength, the vigor and, in fact, the very life in the body, and Dr. McLaughlin's success in making use of its life-giving power proves its merit. With his Electric Belt he has cured 10,000 weak men during the last five years—men who had been troubled with general debility, wasting weakness—men who had been able to get no benefit from drugs. Many of these cases were pronounced incurable by doctors who had failed to cure them. But they have been cured, and they stand ready to testify to it.

You can be a stronger man than you are. You should be stronger. You should have more confidence in yourself. Steel your nerves with this electric current. Feel its warming glow as Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt saturates your body with it. It has made hundreds of vigorous men out of as many weak, despondent fellows. If you have Rheumatism, Lame Back, Sciatica, Lumbago or weakness in the nerves or vital organs, you ought to consult Dr. McLaughlin. He will tell you whether his Belt will cure you and give you his advice free. Don't be ignorant of a remedy which may correct all your past mistakes and assure your future happiness.

Send for Dr. McLaughlin's Book, which is devoted to the weakness of men; tells the cause of early decay in young and middle-aged men. It shows how Electricity, properly applied, will restore this power, and gives the proof. Send for it today. It is free. Address:
